INTELLIGENCE. EPISCOPALIAN.

Eighty-sixth Annual Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Diocese of Pennsylvania-The Afternoon Session Yesterday-Reports, Etc.

When the Episcopal Convention adjourned yesterday at 2 o'clock, the substitute as offered Mr. Welsh was still under discussion. Immediately on reassembling at 50 clock the ques-tion on the resolution was put, and it was declared lost.

After some further discussion and the rejection of the resolution offered by Mr. Hunter, the resolution offered by Mr. Sypher, referring the consideration of the subject to a committee of seven to report at the present convention, was amended so as to read the present convention, was amended so as to read at the next convention, and was then adopted.

The report of the Board of Missions was presented. The following figures are developed in the paper:—Receipts during the year, $6,870.53; balance on hand at the beginning of last year, $2,675.65; total, $9,545.89; expenses during same time, $3,357.07; balance in hand at date, $1,158.52.

The committee to whom was referred the subject of city missions made a report, showing that there were difficulties in the way of establishing such missions, which were at present insuperable; that missions, which were at present insuperable; that the establishment of such missions would give um-brage to the rectors of the various churches who claim entire jurisdiction in their respective parishes; that, further, the establishment of such missions would be in opposition to a section of the canon law. A series of resolutions recommending the ob-ject to the attention of the Bishop and clergy for uture action was agreed to, and the committe

The committee appointed at the last convention The committee appointed at the last convention to take into consideration the feasibility and propriety of securing minority representation (by means of cumulative voting or otherwise) in elections by the convention of this diocese, consisting of Rev. Dr. Hare, Rev. Dr. Howe, Rev. Dr. Rudder, and Messrs, George M. Constroe and Isaac Hazle-hurst, unanimously reported in favor of the plan of cumulative veting in elections for the Standing Committee of this diocese, and submitted the following resolution :-

"Resolved, That in canon 7, section 1, between the word 'order' and the word 'vacancies' the following e inserted :-

' 'Every voter shall be entitled to as many votes as there are persons to be elected; and he may cast all such votes for one person, or he may distribute them among any number of candidates not exceeding the whole number to be voted for. Any ticket having an excess of votes over the whole number of persons to be voted for shall be rejected,

"'A nomination of all persons for whom it is pro-posed to vote shall be made to the convention, at least three hours previous to the election; and no vote for any person not thus previously nominated shall be counted, and no candidate shall be considered as elected who shall not have received a number of votes equal to a majority of all the persons (of each order) voting at such election." A lively debate ensued.

The Rev. Dr. Gtodwin moved to postpone action on the report until the next convention.

Mr. Frederick Fraley thought the matter should be considered now.
Rev. Dr. Hare deprecated any attempt to cut off

Rev. Dr. Goodwin followed in a long speech urging objections againt minority repretentation and cumu-lative voting. He said that he leared the minority might override the majority—that the minority might be compact and intelligent and cast their votes effectively, while the majority might be divided and not understand how to vote. This new principle would cause great electioneering and perhaps heart-burnings. The minority would get together somewhere and agree on united action, while the majority would not be equally prepared. He went into some mathematical calculations. He thought the rights of the majority should not be jeopardized. Time should be given for full consideration. He would quote a Spanish proverb:—"Do not do to-day that which can be as well done to-morrow." Besides, a thought the minority works are seen as well done to-morrow." he thought the minority were represented now in the Standing Committee.

Mr. George M. Conarroe replied to Dr. Goodwin. He said the state of pleasing innocence which was attributed to the majority was really refreshing. The complaint that they should be overriden by the minority was almost indicrous. He felt no fear that they would not know how to vote. He would trust his friend from West Philadelphia on that point. It was said that cumulative voting might cause electioneering. Perhaps that was a new thing. He, however, had been under a contrary

It was said the minority might meet together formewhere in a cascus. If he was not mistaken the majority had done that very thing this present week. As to time, the subject was introduced a year ago. A committee, of various shades of opinion, had reported unanimously in favor of the plan. The minority should have the right to choose their own representatives. The proposed change was adopted last year in New Jersey. It was strange that what could be done in one year in New Jersey required three in Pennsylvania. As to the Spanish proverb, he would reply with a good English one, "Never put off until to-morrow what can be done to-day."

Rev. Drs. Rudder and Paddock took part in the discussion. Dr. Rudder stated that the minority had been recognized in the Standing Committee of Considerable discussion pro and con ensued, and the whole matter was then postponed for considera-Dr. Goodwin then offered a resolution that the matter be referred to the General Convention, with a recommendation that it be carefully considered a recommendation that it be carefully considered at an early day. Agreed to.

Rev. Mr. Drum offered a resolution giving the rectors of the various churches the authority to preside over all congregational meetings. The motion was laid on the table.

The following committee was appointed to consider the subject of the division of the funds of the diocese with the new diocese:—Messrs. Hazlehurst, Rickett, Thayor, Lamberton, Sypher, Robbins, and Hunter.

The time and place of the meeting of the next con-

INQUEST BY THE CORONER.-Deputy Coroner Sees held an inquest in the case of the drowned man found in the Delaware, at Prime street wharf, this morning. The deceased is supposed to have committed suicide, as parties report that he was seen to jump overboard. He is apparently 55 years old, has dark hair and whiskers, grey vest, and white shirt containing the letter and respectably dressed in blue coat and pants D. He had on a black high hat, which was found on the wharf. A verdict of ceath from drowning was rendered.

Young Thieves and a Receiver .- Three young thieves named Robert Clifton, Thomas Halfpenny, and Arthur Hughes are now in prison for stealing pig-iron from a car on Washington street, above Broad, yesterday afternoon. Alderman Dallas committed them, and the same magistrate also sent to Moyamensing Hezekiah Newton, a junk dealer at No. 1340 Elisworth street, who bought the stolen iron.

FIRE FROM A COAL OIL LAMP .- A coal oil lamp at 10 o'clock last night exploded in the house of Robert Harris, at Nineteenth and Kater streets, setting fire to the clothing, burning up a bed-tick, bed, and all the furniture in the room. The fire was extinguished by Engine No. 1. The place was pretty well soaked with water. The loss is $400: covered by insurance.

STONE-THROWERS .- A gang of boys at Fourth and Buttonwood streets, yesterday afternoon, were engaged in base-ball playing, throwing of stones, and other juvenile develtries. A sortie by the police was made on them, and twelve were captured. They were locked up in the station-house three or four hours, to teach them a lesson, and were then discharged.

THE CONDITION OF DR. BLACKBURN.—The many friends of Dr. Blackburn will be pleased to learn that there was a marked improvement in the condition of the Doctor yesterday, though there was a little falling off this morning. Still. the attending physician is confident now that the invalid will recover, an assurance which we know will be halled with gladness.

CORONER'S CASES .- The Coroner this morn ing was notified to hold an inquest in the case of an unknown woman, found dead at Prime street wharf. Also, in the case of a new-born child, found in Cheepunk creek this morning.

BURGLAR CAPTURED .- John Ulmer attempted (queer proceeding!) to burgiarize a house on Baker street at an early hour this morning. He now takes his rations in Moyamensing.

CRUELTY TO HIS HORSES .- Nathan Biddle, of Bucks county, was guilty of cruelty to his horses at Second and Union streets, by placing in the wagon a load which the poor beasts were unable to haul. He was doing his best to urge the jaded beasts, but failed. A police officer arrested him, and Alderman Delaney held him in $400 ball.

FROM NEW ENGLAND. IBY ASSOCIATED PRESS 1

Exclusively to The Evening Telegraph. The Army of the Potomac. Boston, May 12 .- The third annual reunion of the Society of the Army of the Potomac took place at 11 A. M. to-day, in the Globe Theatre, which was decorated profusely with all the 'emblems of war, and distinctive arms of several branches of the service were gracefully blended. The scene was brilliant when the heroes of the Virginia battles, with invited guests, filed on to the stage to the music of Gilmore's band, and the cheers from the auditorium were deafening. Generals Meade, Hooker, Burnside, Sheridan, Logan, Heintzelman, Parke, Humphreys, Pleasanton, Kilpatrick, and a host of others were there; and Governor Classin, President Eliot of Harvard College, Judges of the Supreme Court, and other officials were present as guests. General Meade presided, and initiated the exercises by a brief and touching speech, stating the objects of reunion to be simply social and congratulatory, not political. He commended the widows and orphans of the war to those who survived and were prospering. He welcomed the assemblage cordially, and introduced Rev. Phillips Brooks in a complimentary manner as the chaplain of the occasion, who addressed the Throne of Grace.

Major-General Fairchild, Governor of Wisconsin, was introduced as the orator, and delivered the address. A poem entitled "The Old Major Explains," written for the occasion by Bret Harte, was read by Mr. James T. Field, and elicited much applause. The exercises were interspersed by patriotic music. There will be a banquet this evening.

Meeting of the Cavalry Association. BOSTON, May 12 .- The Cavalry Association held its annual meeting to-day, General Pleasanton, President, in the chair. General Sheridan was greeted enthusiastically. A resolution proposing admission to the society of cavalrymen from all the armies of the Union gave rise to considerable discussion, which was participated in by Generals McIntosh, Kilpatrick, Sargent, Chamberlain, Custer, and Sheridan. The latter said that in improvements which had been made in arms, it becomes necessary to make the cavalry a distinct organization, so it can operate independently of other arms of the service; in other words, to make a cavalry army. He thought he saw while in Europe the evil effects of the old system of brigading cavalry with different divisions of the army. The resolution was finally adopted as follows:-Resolved, That the organization now known as the cavalry corps of the Army of the Potomac be hereafter known as the cavalry corps of the armles of the United States, and all honorably discharged soldiers of any United States cavalry organizations may be admitted members under the constitution. General Sheridan was then elected President of the association for the ensuing year, by acclamation: Vice-Presidents, Generals Gregg, Sargent, McIntosh, Greerson, Custer, Kilpatrick, and Wilson; Secretary, Major Whitehead; Treasurer, Major Corbin.

FROM WASHINGTON.

To-day's Senate Proceedings. Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Senate remained in executive session about an hour and a half.

Mr. Cameron moved to adjourn until to-morrow, and stated that the thought by that time the com-mittee would be ready to report. It was finally agreed that the Senate adjourn until Monday at 11 o'clock. The question of the premature publication of the treaty was brought up, when attention was called to the fact that it had first got out through the State Department.

It was stated that the publication of the text of the treaty was done through some employes of the Senate, and for the future protection of the body these employes should be discovered and punished. Finally, a special committee, of which Carpenter is chairman, was appointed to investigate the matter, with the usual powers to send for persons and papers. A motion was made to remove the injunction of secrecy from the treaty and protocol, but it was defeated. ENGLAND'S BOASTED FREEDOM Outrage upon an Anti-Popery Lecturer— Brutal Treatment of Mr. Murphy.

From the London Standard, April 24.

A most disgraceful outrage has been inflicted upon Mr. W. Murphy, the well-known anti-Popery lecturer. There may be differences of opinion even among Protestants as to the wisdom or expediency of Murphy's proceedings, but if he or any other man cannot deliver a ecture within the walls of some private building (to which people need not go unless they choose) without the risk of being mobbed and murdered, the boasted liberty of Eugland is not worth much. About an hour or so before the time fixed for the commencement of his address on Thursday night, Mr. Murphy pro-ceeded quietly to the Odd Fellows' Hall, with the view of evading observation, and went into the ante-room adjoining and on the same floor as the hall, from which it is divided by a space of about six feet. The entrance to the building is through a long covered passage leading from the street, and up six flights of stairs. After Murphy had gone into the ante-room a band of 300 Roman Catholic miners from Cleator Moor marched down Corkickle ten abreast. Upon reaching the Odd Fellows' Hall, the band halted and at once took possession of the entrance to the building and the stairs. When they did this there were only about fifteen or sixteen of the friends of the lecturer in the hall, and it wanted upwards of half an hour of the time when the discourse was to begin. The lecturer unaware of the purpose of those who were waiting for him outside, left the ante-room in order to proceed into the hall. The moment he made his appearance he was selzed by the mob. He was dragged down the stairs by his savage assailants, and struck and kicked unmercifully the whole way. He was then dragged into the passage, knocked down, kicked, raised up, knocked down again, and kicked till he was covered with blood, which gushed from his wounds and splashed the walls. He was then dragged down the passage, the brutal treatment going on the whole time until he reached the door opening the street, and there, it is said, an attempt was made to kill him outright, by a man who drew a weapon for the purpose. At this juncture, however, some persons interfered to save the now insensible victim of this rufflauly violence. They got him back into the passage, the outer door of which was closed in the face of his as-sailants, and conveyed him up-stairs to the ante-room. The band having done the work which they had set out to do, marched back in triumph to Cleator Moor, cheering as they proceeded through the villages on the way. A visitor to Murphy on Friday morning found him lying upon the bed which had been made up for him, unable to move. His head was swathed in bandages, and his face bruised, cut, and swollen. There is a shocking wound above the left eye, which had been almost kicked out of its socket. His body is all over black, blue, and purple, from the kicks which he had received. He was hovering between life and death, and it seemed as if the balance might as easily incline one way as the other. A large number of policemen had been drawn into Whitehaven to preserve order, but they seem to have been taken by surprise by the attack hav-ing been made so long before the time announced for the commencement of the lecture.

SHIPWRECK.

Terrible Adventures of Two Brooklyn Ladies. Among future collections of thrilling stories of shipwreck must be included the adventures of two ladies of Brooklyn, who but a few days ago arrived at New York from Buenos Ayres. The entire shipwrecked party consists of Mrs. S. A. Wheelwright, of Brooklyn, who is the wife of the United States Consul at Rosario, Argentine Republic, her two children, a boy about five years of age, and a little girl. Miss Anita E. Wheelwright, a cousin of Mrs. Wheelwright, and a solitary escort in Mr. A. S. Doane, the brother of the first-named lad? On the 29th day of February last the party were the 29th day of February last the party were coasting along the southern border of Brazil, homeward-bound from Montevideo, in the ship Hellespont. The next morning before daylight the good ship was a helpless wreck on a sunken reef. After a night of terror in the breaking hulk a boat was successfully launched, and the ladies, with the children of Mr. Doane, fortunately reached the beach in safety. A tent was made of the ship's sails, and huddled into its narrow limits were the ladies, the children, the gentlemen passengers, the officers of the ship, and the half-crazed seamen, who had already broken open the wine baskets of the passengers and were making the night hideous with their ribaldry and foul oaths. Stretched upon the hard ground, with a few shawls and light clothing thrown over them, the tender females endured the horrors of a night that they will never forget. They had saved their lives, but it seemed that they had only been succored to be tortured by the terrors of a veritable pandemonium. At last the sun arose on another cherless day. The men lay around the tent sleeping the sound sleep of the debauched. Later in the day the sailors, having stoien quan-tities of cana or native rum, repeated their orgies of the night previous, in spite of the threats of the officers, who appeared powerless to restrain them. Seven days was this frightful existence borne by the Wheelwrights, when, on the 28th, arrangements for reaching Rio Grande having been perfected, they started for Vilko

Mattos, a village not many miles distant. In a bullock-cart drawn by five pairs of huge cattle and seated upon beds of straw, they slowly wended their way over a miserable apology for a road. Scorched by the burning rays of a tropical sun, suffocated with intolerable thirst, and exposed to the pitiless storms which sweep over the country with such fearful vio-lence, the unfortunate females, with their escort, at last reach Rio Grande after a journey of over ten days. Here they encountered the yellow fever at the time when the mortality had reached over five hundred a day and the paulcstricken people were fleeing in every direction. They fortunately, however, found the bark Serene, bound for New York, and escaped the

RAMIE VS. COTTON.

A Formidable Rival of the Great American The Liverpool correspondent of the New York Shipping and Commercial List writes that ramic is wanted in that market at $265 gold per ton. As the culture of the ramic plant in the South is understood to have passed beyond mere experiment, and as cotton is said to be too cheap to be profitable, the wonder is that the planters do not turn their attention more to the first-mentioned staple. Ramic culture has many advantages over culture. It is a hardy and vigorous vantages over cotton. It is a hardy and vigorous vantages over cotton. It is a hardy and vigorous grower, and its growth is continuous. A crop once planted will stand for years without requiring to be renewed. It is not destroyed by worms, does not suffer from excess of rain, and stands the longest drouth without injury. From all that is related of this wonderful plant, it would seem that it is exposed to no special danger in a suitable climate, has no enemies, requires but little labor, needs but a small capital to produce a crop, propagates rapidly, yields largely, commands a ready mar-ket at a high price for all that can be produced, and the market is never likely to be overstocked as the area for its successful growth is limited to a belt in the Gulf States. It requires less labor to cultivate than cotton, the process being similar to corn culture; and it is said that one hand can take care of fifty or sixty acres after the first year. The only drawback to unqualified success in ramie culture seems to be the difficulty in separating the fibre from the bark and the bark from the stalk; but this difficulty will eventually be overcome. So important is the cultivation of the plant considered in India, a cotton-producing country, that the Governor-General, a year or more ago, offered a prize of $25,000 for the machine or process best adapted for separating, also offering to buy the successful machine at 5 per cent. above its cost, and to secure the inventor a profit of 5 per cent. on all other machines made under the patent.
